Press release on the new album "Angels are Real „

Soul trip for the rocker's heart

The Swiss rock band "Pilots of the Daydreams" has released their album "Angels are Real" in March 2021. This album is their premiere and at the same time the birth of their musical reference. Ten songs about spirituality, love and emotional rollercoasters.

Bischofszell, 28 April 2021: Determination, passion and the belief to create music that bears their own signature are the drivers of the Italo-Swiss musicians, the alternative rock band "Pilots of the Daydreams", founded in 2019. The song writing process already began in 2019 and is today described by the band members as a lucky coincidence - because producing an album was not the first priority. It turned out differently: "The ideas just bubbled out of us - looking back, we knew that the right musicians had come together here." - is the tenor of the band.

A solid foundation to start with

From the very beginning, the new band project was to include all the valuable experiences of the three musicians and exclude anything useless. It was a liberating situation for all three established musicians to be able to start free of constraints - e.g. not better, faster higher - but creatively, powerfully and intuitively. The focus was on songwriting and the creative power of the collective. The mutual encouragement led to the band producing two first tracks and a video already in 2019. "It was like an initiation when we listened to the two tracks in the studio - an initiation into our musical cosmos, shaped by our three personalities - fantastic. That bond was now sort of cast." - says the band's singer and guitarist. At this act, a clear vision was also internalised together: a solid foundation based on the personal experiences, potentials and resources of the musicians.

With this motivating start, they began to compose more songs with the intention of producing an album in 2020. The finances were secondary - but the desire was great. The plan worked out in the end, because a successful crowdfunding campaign proved the loyalty of the musicians, fans and friends.

Heart, soul and own stories

Everything about the songwriting process fit, especially the thematic content that manifested itself in the individual tracks. The lyrics developed from a mix of reflective processing and the ordering of experiences. This work was a central building block in the whole songwriting process and so it came about that on the album, partly autobiographical to content-related topics such as "spirituality, love and emotional roller coasters" can be found, which supported the power of the songs.

The tracks were deliberately all recorded live, with the exception of the vocals and a few overdubs. This unique atmosphere gives the production an authentic feel. In the end, it is the positive power of the songs that the album exudes - from darkness to light - carried by hope and courage.

Rock in the DNA and other reminiscences

The musicians of Pilots of the Daydreams bring in the most diverse stylistic influences. This has an impact on the musical style, which they describe as energising rock. The sound should not be understood as vintage or retro, but as a modern version of it. The three Italo-Swiss musicians emphasise spherical and energetic arrangements of their own brand and impress with their distinctive vocals. The band covers various spectrums of their musical style influences such as alternative rock, enriched with melodic rock, heavy rock, dark rock and psychedelic rock elements.

According to their own statements, the music is not fast food, but "handmade" with a long-term effect for rock enthusiasts. The musicians come from Eastern Switzerland (Thurgau and St.Gallen). The current line-up consists of: Marco Predicatori (lead vocals & guitars), Walo Bortoletto (bass), Biagio Anania (drums & percussions). Pilots of the Daydreams are a reason to change your heart rate, raise your pulse and flood the audience's veins with "energy rock".
